"We are more likely to get the application returned by the client using iGO e-App with e-Signature versus wet signature."

"We get more business!"

The screenshot shows a web application interface with a sidebar menu on the left containing items like 'Medical Supplement (Cont)', 'Financial Supplement', 'VUL Investments', and 'VUL Subletty'. The main content area is titled 'Application' and 'Signature Method'. It prompts the user to 'Please choose a signature method:' with two options: 'Wet Signature: Print, review, wet sign and mail' (unselected) and 'eSignature: Electronically review, eSign and eSubmit via the web' (selected). Below this, it lists criteria for e-signing: '1. Agent must collect the email address for each signer', '2. All signers must have access to the internet and have their own email address (Supported Browser: Internet Explorer)', '3. All signers must agree to use the eSignature process', and '4. All eSignatures must be obtained within 14 calendar days'. There are 'Back' and 'Next' buttons at the bottom.

When the iGO e-App is completed and you have received all green checkmarks, the form can be locked for e-Signature and e-Submission for straight-through processing. Wet signature always remains an option.
